ORREN PICKELL DESIGNERS AND BUILDERS

With over 30 years in the design-build industry, Orren Pickell never loses sight of what matters most—his clients. “Building someone’s home is an honor,” says the President and CEO of Orren Pickell—the family-run establishment that has become known for its state-of-the-art processes and impeccable craftsmanship. “A home is the biggest single investment a person will make. Being an integral part of the decision making, and building their house from the ground up—it doesn’t get more rewarding than that.” And with 35 years of experience, Pickell leads the industry with the insight, expertise and know-how to give clients the exceptional quality results they’re looking for. “I take all the information I learn from past projects and apply it to the next one, so I’m always evolving my techniques.” A one-stop facility for all aspects of design-build, Orren Pickell boasts his own workshop, maintenance department and custom line of kitchen cabinetry, establishing his company as an all-inclusive destination for unsurpassed service. “My philosophy is to be the best, and that requires ensuring all of our clients’ needs are met,” says Pickell, who, to uphold his promise of “remaining absolutely transparent,” employs a computer software program that allows clients and vendors to log into the company website and track their projects. “Whether it’s purchase orders, invoices, floor plans, change orders—you name it—it’s on there. Others might say they involve their clients, but we put all of our processes out on display, proving we truly are an open book,” adds his daughter, Lisa Pickell, the company’s Chief Operating Officer.

What are you working on next?

One of our big new projects is a contemporary farm house, a green home that incorporates a geothermal heating and cooling system. We are also currently working on expanding our signature custom cabinetry line, which has been a huge success for us.
